

SIXTEEN KILLED IN THE CLASH

Between Striking Miners and Deputy Sheriffs in Coal Fields

FORTY ARE WOUNDED

Martial Law Again Declared by Governor Glasscock in West Virginia—Six Mil- itia Companies Patrol the District.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 11.—For the third time in the history of West Virginia, martial law is in effect. Portions of four counties today are in control of the state militia following a battle yesterday between the striking miners of the Kanawha coal fields and deputy sheriffs, railroad officers and mine guards.

In a clash near Mucklow yesterday afternoon, 16 persons were killed and probably two score injured. Twelve of the dead were miners and four were state officers.

It was learned early today that Standard, W. Va., a mile above Mucklow, had been shot up, the fire being directed from the mountains.

Five companies of state militia ordered out last night by Governor Glasscock reached the strike zone before midnight. A sixth company reached the district this morning.

Trouble in the mine district began in April, 1912. Since that time the militia has twice invaded the Paint and Cabin Creek districts of Kanawha county.

The first time martial law was declared at an end. Within a week the troops were ordered back into the strike territory because of rioting and bloodshed. They were gradually withdrawn and the second proclamation of martial law was never lifted.

Since last Friday almost a condition of anarchy has prevailed at Paint and Cabin creeks.

Passenger trains on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad have been subjected to fire, mine guards shot and attempts made to apply the torch to the property of the various coal companies in the various districts.

Last Saturday after a reign of terror in the strike district on Friday night, Governor Glasscock prepared to bring the situation before the legislature of West Virginia, now in session. This, however, was not done, and Sunday telegraph wires into the troubled zone were cut and the mine districts left isolated.

A body of miners marching from the mountains toward Mucklow were met by a force of mine guards, deputy sheriffs and railroad officers.

Without warning, the two forces opened fire. The miners drove the officers back. Reinforcements arrived by this time had taken up guerrilla warfare and the authorities steadily retreated.

It is said that the miners numbered from three to four hundred men who were concealed in the mountains.

At midnight last night it was learned that rapidfire guns of the authorities had inflicted death to 12 miners, while but four of the officers were killed.

The 16 injured are scattered over a territory of 15 square miles. A number are said to be fatally hurt. It is also said that the number of injured is much greater.

Adjutant General Charles D. Elliott left Charleston last night with two companies of militia from this city. General Elliott has taken personal charge of the strike situation. With him are the members of the military court who acted during the last two administrations of martial law.

The acts of the military commission in sentencing over two scores of persons to long terms in the West Virginia penitentiary were recently questioned in the state supreme court and the supreme court of the United States. The military court was upheld, and at the same time, the validity of martial law declared by governors of states was held to be legal.

Last night when conditions became critical, Governor Glasscock ordered out the militia. Within a few hours, the first companies were on the scene, an endeavor was made to open up communication with Charleston, members of the National Guard stretching out over the route taken by wires.

It is hoped that direct communication between the state authorities and the strike territory will be established today.

Adjutant General Elliott at day-break took active command of the disturbed section of the Kanawha coal fields, where almost a score of miners and guards were killed in yesterday's battles.

With a provisional regiment of five companies he moved out from Paint Creek Junction, two being sent to the Cabin Creek district, where trouble was expected today, and three, under command of Major Thomas D. Davis, taking the road to Mucklow, where yesterday's fighting was fiercest.

BOND-DEAN CASE GOES TO JURORS

May Be Reported to Joint Committee Thursday— Bill for State Picture Censorship Up to the Solons.

Columbus, Feb. 11.—The fate of former Mayor Charles A. Bond and former Senator Thomas A. Dean, charged with having offered bribes during the last session of the legislature, was placed in the hands of the jury at 11 o'clock this morning. At 2:30 o'clock the jury was still out.

Including the ideas of Governor Cox, the so-called administration liquor license code being prepared by a subcommittee of the joint house and senate liquor license committee, probably will be ready to report to the joint committee Thursday. The bill will then be gone over by the joint committee. It probably will go before the house for passage week after next week.

Motion pictures cannot lawfully be exhibited in Ohio unless approved by a board of three censors appointed by the governor if a bill introduced in the House yesterday becomes law. The measure was offered by Representative Thornton R. Snyder of Hamilton county.

Tacked on is an emergency clause providing for the immediate taking of effect of the law in order to preserve and safeguard public morals. It is provided that two members of the board are to receive a yearly salary of $1,500 while the chairman's pay is fixed at $2,500. A censorship fee of $1 is specified, unless the film exceeds 1,000 feet in length, when the charge will be $2.

It is proposed to regulate the granting of divorces by a measure offered by Representative Venderheide of Montgomery county, under the terms of which neither party to a divorce action would be permitted to remarry within a year. If the divorce is given on proof of infidelity, remarriage is inhibited for two years. Those who have been divorced, however, can go back to each other and try for again if they wish. The bill also provides that decrees shall not become effective until one year from the time they are granted. The penalty for violation of the law is not less than

SIX YEAR TERM PASSED OVER TO NEXT CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 11.—The Clayton resolution for a constitutional amendment for a six-year single presidential term effective in 1921 to exempt Taft, Wilson or Roosevelt from its operation was put over to the next congress today by the house judiciary committee. This indicates that no action will be taken on the Works single term resolution already passed by the senate.

NEW CIVIL SERVICE SYSTEM

LIQUOR LICENSE CODE

May Be Reported to Joint Committee Thursday— Bill for State Picture Censorship Up to the Solons.

Columbus, Feb. 11.—Ohio's proposed new civil service system for all state and county officials would go into effect Jan. 1, 1914, at the same time that the new city administrations take hold, if the Friebolin bill, before the legislature, is amended as desired by its author. Senator Friebolin will ask Governor Cox's aid for the bill.

Including the ideas of Governor Cox, the so-called administration liquor license code being prepared by a subcommittee of the joint house and senate liquor license committee, probably will be ready to report to the joint committee Thursday. Extra precautions are being taken to prevent any possibility of the escape of the four yeggmen now confined in the county jail.

Neary and Winslow have been placed in widely separated cells on the second floor, while Baker and Longfellow are in nearly separated on the first floor.

The men are being held under $2,000 bonds in each case pending the meeting of the grand jury for the April term of court.

The charge against them is burglary. Evidence will be placed before the grand jury, which will probably result in an indictment of larceny and safe blowing in addition to the burglary charge.

All of the men are confident and have nothing to say at present about the Granville job. It is thought, however, that one of them may

The evidence against the alleged yeggs is almost complete, as the stolen goods were found upon their person, even one of the men having a share of it, the loot evidently having been divided before taking the Columbus car in this city.

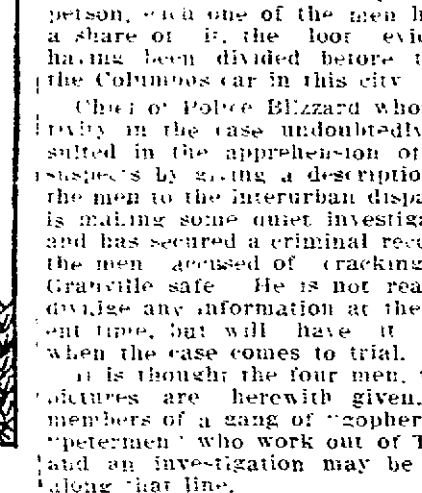

Chief of Police Blizard whose activity in the case undoubtedly resulted in the apprehension of the suspects by giving a description of the men to the suburban dispatcher is making some quiet investigations and has secured a criminal record of the men accused of cracking the Granville safe. He is not ready to divulge any information at the present time, but will have it ready when the case comes to trial.

PERISHED ON RETURN FROM POLE

Capt. Scott and Four Com- panions Caught in An- arctic Blizzard

NEAR BASE OF SUPPLIES

Brave Band of Intrepid Ex- plorers Died of Exposure and Hunger—Bodies and Records Found.

London, Feb. 11.—After the ambition of his life had been realized in discovering the south pole, Captain Robert F. Scott, heroic and dauntless British explorer, and four members of his expedition perished when on their return to the base of their supplies in the antarctic region.

Dr. E. A. Wilson, Lieutenant H. R. Bowers, Captain L. E. Gates, and Petty Officer E. Evans were the four members of the party who perished with Captain Scott.

Confirmation of the disaster was given in London last night at a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society.

Captain Scott's party, said Douglas W. Freshfield, vice president of the Geographical Society, in making the statement, found Captain Roald Amundsen's tent and records at the south pole.

On the return trip, about March 29, 1912, 11 miles from One-Ton Depot, a blizzard overwhelmed them. They had suffered greatly from hunger and exposure, and the death of Scott, Bowers and Wilson was virtually due to that. They died soon after the blizzard swept down on the party.

Causes died of exposure a few days later. The death of Evans resulted from a fall. The other members of the expedition are reported to be in good health. A searching party discovered their bodies and records some time later.

Only meager details are yet available of the polar tragedy, ranking in disastrous results with the ill-fated Franklin expedition.

News of the death of Capt. Scott and his four brave companions, who succeeded in this final dash in reaching the south pole, only to find proofs that Amundsen had forestalled them, comes in a brief dispatch from Lieutenant E. R. G. Evans, of the Royal Navy, who was second in command when the expedition started, and who now signs as "commander" of the expedition.

The staggering effect of the news on the public mind is all the greater since it was believed that modern science and recent experience had completely dispelled the exploration of its former terrors.

No greater surprise would have been felt had Captain Scott failed to reach the pole, but that he should perish in his hour of triumph was the very last thing that could be anticipated, and in view of the terrible dangers which still exist the fate of Captain Scott and his companions is likely to discourage further attempts to reach the poles, now that both have been attained and the circumstances of hurried dashes prevent valuable scientific results from being obtained.

No detailed facts are yet known, but it is believed that the records of the scientific material collected, together with the explorers' bodies, have been preserved.

It is also understood that gallant attempts were made by other members of the expedition to save the Scott party, but these were defeated by severe weather conditions and the lack of food and supplies to be practically certain that the explorers starved to death.

Dr. E. R. G. Evans, who was second in command of the expedition, states that the Scott party in the SENSE OF VALUE.

By Chalmers L. Pancoast.

The proper appreciation of your city's relative worth—is the key-note of the great problem of civic betterment which is being worked out in Newark.

To know when and where to exert your efforts in building up Newark—to appreciate what is worth striving for in Newark—determines not only the value of the citizen, with the sense of value, but of the city as a community.

How quickly are we impressed with a city which has an organization like the Newark Board of Trade. This organization has developed a sense of civic values to a high degree. It has the proper conception of energy and how it should be used to secure fruitful results.

This map, drawn by City Engineer Charles H. Wells shows Newark's position relative to other points throughout the state. Newark is 100 miles from Cleveland, 315 from Chicago, 597 from New York, and 100 miles from St. Louis.

Suffered Twenty-One Years—Finally Found Relief.

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in his side, I finally found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. The physicians called it "Mother's Pain" and injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hope of living. A friend advised me to try Swamp-Root. He said that one of his friends had used it and that it had cured him. I bought a bottle and I am now a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several smaller ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend it to all suffering humanity.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE
Avonlea Park, Marksville, La.
Personally appeared before me this 15th day of July, 1931, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Witness my hand and the seal of my office this 15th day of July, 1931.

PEGGY MOORE WILL MANAGE THE MAYSVILLE CLUB

Announcement has been made that Peggy Moore will manage the Maysville team in the Blue Grass league next season. The owners of the Kentucky team had been after the local man for some time, but the terms were not definitely agreed on until Saturday.

Frank Moore went to Portsmouth from Newark three weeks ago. He was one of the managers of the Southern League club for two years, but last season he was previously drafted by a western team and then turned to Portsmouth after the previous staff had been made up by Ohio. He was turned over to brother, As manager of the Natters, he was signally successful, taking the best players from the Eastern Major team and the Western Minor league outfit, welding them into a unit that came in second only to the champion Cubs in the Ohio State series. A long-spined, fire-haired fellow, the winter weathered Moore to the extent that his smiling arm was cut up to the elbow and of other seasons, but despite this handicap he surprised all the fans around the circuit by his success in leading the Lawrence counties to sign up in the standing.

COX TAKES UP FARM PROBLEM

Issues Call for Conference on Rural Life.

GOOD ROADS INCLUDED

Every County in State Urged to Send Representatives to Columbus March 12 and 13—Governor is Owner of a Farm and Knows Difficulties Encountered by Agriculturalists—Columbus City Council Starts Campaign to Restrict Powers of J. P.'s.

Columbus, O., Feb. 11.—(Special.) Confronted as he is with the farm and most important legislative program that was ever framed by a state administration, Governor Cox has nevertheless found time to take on a new and heavy task—that of devising a plan to stop the influx from the rural to the urban communities of the commonwealth.

The owner of a large and productive farm, the work on which he personally oversees and directs, the governor is not only qualified to participate in a discussion of problems that confront farmers, but he knows from experience just what conditions are causing a diminishing interest in the science of agriculture.

During his administration he has given many examples of his interest in the affairs of the farmers, but his most important action in behalf of the agriculturists was the calling of a rural life and good roads congress in Columbus March 10 and 12. The purpose as given by the executive is to outline the needs of the farmers, and to devise ways and means of solving the problems which confront them.

Ohio farmers have constantly complained of their inability to keep their boys and girls in the country. Despite the constantly diminishing food supply, the farmers are forced to pay higher and higher, and, consequently, is making the science of agriculture more and more profitable, the exodus from the farms steadily increases. Nowhere in the country boys and girls who are the future of the rural sections by the loss of the children of the cities are being so well financially as those who remain on the farms, that agriculture has no influence on the migration of country folk.

The executive points out that there has never been an organized effort to work out a solution of this problem, the attempts being confined to legislation upon the part of a portion of the people. In order that all the parties may become interested in this movement, the executive indicates the hope that there will be a large and representative gathering of farmers at the congress, Jan. 10, at the Ohio Statehouse, Columbus.

The chairman of the committee, Dr. M. J. Smith, of the Ohio Statehouse, is making a more rigid enforcement of laws through a new state board of health, over township and city boards and officers. When the state board finds any of its members are negligent of their duties, it may cause the removal of the member, and the state board may appoint a new member.

While the state board of health is also showing they were Representative James Smith, one of the few progressive men in the house, offered a "walking delegate" law, under the present law, the payment of fees to the members of the board would make the case of "bona fide" labor unions.

The negro farmer of the South shows progress.

and the result is a default judgment is taken. This means the defendant, who knows that an attachment of his wages will result in his being discharged, and he generally pays before extreme action is resorted to. In a great many cases that have come to the attention of city officials, default judgments have been entered in suits that were without merit. A bill limiting the jurisdiction of the justice to the territory given will be forwarded to the general assembly by the Columbus council. It will not strike at city justices or the peace officers, but it will be strictly regulated by council and the practice in them has been fair.

In the small courts there is no such complaint against the country justices, and members from those sections have in past sessions defeated such bills.

In his message to the general assembly Governor Cox said the state must take a place above community in governmental affairs, and he made the suggestion that the state should have a reversal of this condition. That statement has proved a cue for many solutions, with the result that the committee pigeonholes such houses as are filled with social human welfare bills.

The lawyer and the politician were supposed to have a monopoly on card indexes, but the politicians refused that supposition. When Dr. W. S. King of Ashtabula county, a member of the house, offered a measure that has one clause providing for a card index of conditions found in the schools by dentists, physicians and nurses. Thus business rules are to be adopted in keeping account of all the misery of a school pupil if Dr. King has his way and the state of health of each child enrolled is to be a matter of open record.

Another part of the bill takes up the fight against tuberculosis by providing for the appointment of trained nurses by county commissioners and trustees of tuberculosis hospitals to visit upon people afflicted with the disease. Their compensation is to be fixed by the appointing authorities.

Authority is lodged with the county commissioners to transfer tubercular patients in the county infirmaries to these hospitals and their keep is to be charged against the counties. The commissioners are required to make a levy sufficient to maintain these hospitals, and in the event none is established, they may contract with private institutions treating this disease.

But the fight of the solons against disease does not end with the measures quoted. In addition another pending bill authorizes the governor to designate a "Health Day" in the common schools, when instruction is to be given the pupils in hygiene, sanitation and personal care of the sick. Yet another, which was drawn by the late Representative Lawrence F. Conway of Lucas county, at the request of his widow, provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate the alleged cure for tuberculosis which a German doctor says he has discovered. A fund of $7,500 is set aside for the commission to purchase a supply of the serum if they decide it is a cure.

Representative Van S. Deaton of Miami county would have the general assembly create a commission to investigate the needs of the blind and to grant a pension of not to exceed $1 per day for every blind person in destitute circumstances. Based upon the present number of sightless persons in the commonwealth, this measure would amount to an annual charge of $21,000. To provide this a levy of three-tenths of a mill is to be made upon all the property of the state. The same blind commission is to be abolished if the Deaton measure goes through both houses.

Representative George F. Doster of Cuyahoga county has a companion bill pending for the blind. He would establish schools for blind and crippled children over four years of age all over the state.

By its terms the state is to bear the expense of the blind to pay each district, the cost of the blind being divided, $200 annually, and $150 for each crippled child in these schools. There are no statistics available to ascertain how much this would cost, but it is certain the measure would cause a heavy balance to melt as fast as snow in a July day with a lingering 100 degrees.

Dr. M. J. Smith, of the Ohio Statehouse, is making a more rigid enforcement of laws through a new state board of health, over township and city boards and officers. When the state board finds any of its members are negligent of their duties, it may cause the removal of the member, and the state board may appoint a new member.

While the state board of health is also showing they were Representative James Smith, one of the few progressive men in the house, offered a "walking delegate" law, under the present law, the payment of fees to the members of the board would make the case of "bona fide" labor unions.

Why Chinamen Are Poor Soldiers.

The Chinaman is a poor soldier. Not that he is lacking in courage, for on occasions he cheerfully sells himself as substitute and goes willingly to the executioner's ax in order to provide his parents with the small sum necessary to support them through life. The strength of an army is in team work, and here is where he fails on account of his aversion to being ordered. This is found in his domestic and industrial work. A general line of policy or desired results can be laid down, and he will faithfully work in accordance therewith, but he dislikes to be followed up through the details of the work with frequent orders. He will produce excellent results, but they must be accomplished in his own way; hence the essence of good militarism—prompt and unquestioned obedience—comes in direct conflict with his nature and makes him a poor soldier. However, this trait is not entirely wanting in other nationalities, as every business man knows to his sorrow, and the difficulty of getting employees to do a thing in the prescribed way is one of the constant anxieties.—H. H. Windsor in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A Doubtful Introduction.

In Rubinstein's "Reminiscences" we read how the illustrious pianist went from Berlin to settle in Vienna, fortified by letters of introduction to various celebrities given to him by the Russian ambassador at the Prussian court. He presented several of them without any beneficial result, and it then occurred to him to tear open those which remained and read them. They all ran, he says, as follows:

"Dear Countess—Our position as ambassador and ambassador imposes upon us the tiresome duty of patronizing and introducing all kinds of patriots, who are often most important in their solicitations. I therefore now venture to introduce to you a certain Rubinstein, the bearer of this communication."

After that experience Rubinstein threw all his letters of introduction into the fire, and he got on a great deal better without them.

MAKES YOUR BACKACHE QUICKLY DISAPPEAR

A Few Doses Relieves All Such Miseries. Bladder Weakness, Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism Promptly Vanish.

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders to contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleaning out the poisons and removing the cause.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back, and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

PLACING DANIEL.

"Who was Webster?" asked a member of the school board. "A statesman," said one boy. "An orator," said another. "But what is a statesman?" asked the captain. "A man who goes around making speeches," answered a small boy. "That's not exactly right," said the gentleman, smiling. "Now, I go around making speeches once in a while, but I'm not a statesman at all."

"I know," spoke up a bright little fellow. "It's a man who goes around making good speeches."—Christian Register.

Nature never intended woman to be delicate, effeminate or a sufferer from "nerves." Women in middle age complain of "nerves." CHAPTER XX
March Hares.
George, in that masterful way which was not wholly acquired, but which had been a latency till the episodic journey—George paid for the dinner, called the head-waiter and thanked him for the attention given it, and laid a generous tip upon the cover. From the dining-room the two young people, outwardly calm but inwardly filled with the Great Tumult, went to the manager's bureau and arranged for Fortune's room. This settled, Fortune went down to the cavernous entrance to bid George good night. They were both diffident and shy, now that the great problem was solved. George was puzzled as to what to do in bidding her good night, and Fortune wondered if he would kiss her right here, before all these horrid cab-drivers.

"I shall call for you at nine," he said. "We've got to do some shopping."

A tinkle of laughter.
"These ready-made suits are beginning to look like the deuce."
"Do you always think of everything?"
"Well, what I don't remember, the clerk will," slyly. "Till recently I believe I never thought of anything. I must be off. It's too cold down here for you." He offered his hand nervously.

She gave her's freely. He looked into her marvelous eyes for a moment. Then he turned the palm upward and kissed it, lightly and lovingly; and she drew it across his face, over his eyes, till it left in departing a caress upon his forehead. He stood up, breathing quickly, but not more so than she. A little tableau. Then he jammed his battered fedora upon his head and strode up the Corso. He dared not turn. Had he done so, he must have gone back and taken her in his arms. She followed him with brave eyes; she saw him suddenly veer across the street and pause at the parapet. It was then that she became conscious of the keenness of the night-wind. She went in. Somehow, all earth's puzzles had that night been solved.

George lighted a cigar, doubtless the most costly weed to be found in all Naples that night. The intermittent glowing of the end faintly outlined his face. Far away across the shimmering bay rose Capri in a kind of magic, amethystine transparency. A light or two twinkled where Sorrento lay. His gaze roved the half-circle, and finally rested upon the grim dark ash-heaps, Vesuvius. Beauty, beauty everywhere; beauty in the sky, beauty upon earth, in his heart and mind. He was twenty-eight, and all these wonderful things had happened in a little more than so many days!

"God's in his heaven, All's right with the world!"
He flung the half-finished cigar into the air, careless as to where it fell, or that in falling it might set Naples on fire. It struck a roof somewhere below; a splutter of sparks, and all was dark again.

"I shall come." All through his dreams that night he heard it. "I shall come."

Next morning he notified the captain to retain their cabins. After that they proceeded to storm the shops. They were like March hares; irresponsible children, both of them. What did propriety matter? What meaning had circumspection? They two were all alone; the rest of the world didn't count. It never had counted to either of them. Certainly they should have gone to a parsonage; Mrs. Grundy would prudently have suggested it. The trivialities of convention, however, had no place at that moment in their little Eden. They were a law unto themselves.

Into twenty shops they went; modiste after modiste was interviewed; and Fortune at length found two models. These were pretty, and, being models, quite inexpensive. Once, George was forced to remain outside in the carriage. It was in front of the lingerie shop. He put away each receipt, just like a husband upon his honeymoon. Later, receipts would mean as much, but from a different angle of vision. He bought so many violets that the carriage looked as though it were ready for the flower carnival. He laughingly disregarded her protests. It was the Song of Songs.

"My shopping is done," she said at last, dropping the bundles upon the carriage floor. "Now, it is your turn."
"You have forgotten a warm steam-er-cloak," he reminded her.
"So I have!"
This oversight was easily remedied; and then George sought the tailor-shops for ready-made clothes. He had more difficulty than Fortune; ready-made suits were not the easiest things to find in Naples. By noon, however, he had acquired a Scotch woolen for day wear and a fairly decent dinner

They Stormed the Shops; Irresponsible Children, Both of Them.

"Meas," he added humorously.
"What is it about the native land that clutches at our hearts so? I am an American, and yet I was born in the south of France. I went to school for a time near Philadelphia. America, America! Can't I be an American, even if I was born elsewhere?"
"You can never be president," he said gravely.
"I don't want to be president!" She snuggled closer to him. "All I want to be is a good man's wife; to watch the kitchen to see that he gets good things to eat; to guard his comfort; to laugh when he is sad; to nurse him when he is ill; to be all and everything to him in adversity as well as in prosperity; a true life." She touched his sleeve with her cheek. "And I don't want him to think that he must always be with me; if he belongs to a man-club, he must go there once in a while."

"I am very happy," was all he could say.
"George, I am uneasy. I don't know why. It's my mother, my uncle, and Horace. I am going to meet them somewhere. I know it. And I worry about you."
"About me? That's foolish." He smiled down at her.
"Ah, why did my mother seek to renew the acquaintance with you? Why did Horace have you kidnapped into the desert? There can be no such thing as the United Romance and Adventure company. It is a cloak for something more sinister."
"Pshaw! What's the use of worrying, little woman? Whatever schemes they had must be out of joint by now. Sometimes I think I must be dreaming, little girl."
"I am not little. I'm almost as tall as you are."
"You are vastly taller in many ways."
"Don't be too sure. I am human; I have my moods. I am sometimes crochety; sometimes unjust and quick of temper."
"All right; I want you, temper and all, just the same."
"But will they like me? Won't they think I'm an adventuress, or something like that?"
"Bless your heart, not in a thousand years! I'm a pretty wise man in some ways, and they know it."
And so it proved to be. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer greeted them at the pier in Hoboken. One glance at the face of the girl was sufficient. Mrs. Mortimer held out her arms. It was a very fine thing to do.

"I was in doubt at first," she said frankly. "George is so guileless. But to look at you, my child, would scatter the doubts of a Thomas. Will you let me be your mother, if only for a little while?" with a wise and tender smile.

Shirley Fortune accepted the embrace. Never had she been so happy. Never had she felt arms like these about her.

"What did he cable you?" she asked in a whisper.

"That he loved you and wanted me to mother you against that time when he might have the right to take you as his own. Has he that right?"

"Yes. And oh! he is the bravest and tenderest man I know; and below it all he is only a boy."

Mrs. Mortimer patted her hand. A little while later all four went over to the city and drove uptown to the Mortimer home. On the way Fortune told her story, simply, without avoiding any essential detail. And all her new mother did was to put an arm about her and draw her closer.

The Mortimer home was only three blocks away from George's. So, when dinner was over, George declared that he would run over and take a look at his own house. He wanted to wander about the rooms a bit, to fancy how it would look when Fortune walked at his side. He promised to return within an hour. He had forgotten many things, ordinarily important; such as wiring his agent, his butler and cook, who were still drawing their wages. He passed along the street above which was his own. He came for a moment to the great banking concern. And the president of this bank was the elder brother of Ryanne! Lots of queer kinks in the world; lots of crooked turnings. He passed on, turned the corner, and strode toward his home, ran up the steps. Three doors below ecstasy thrilled his heart. Lightly he noticed two automobiles. He gave them only a cursory glance. He took out his ring of keys, found the night-latch and thrust it into the keyhole. He never had believed in this putting up of iron gates and iron shutters. A night-latch and a caretaker who came round once a day was enough for any sensible person. He turned the key. Eh? It didn't seem to go round. He tried several times, but without success. Puzzled, he struck a match and stopped before the keyhole.

It was a new one.

HIGH PRAISE

FOR F. P. HOUSEHOLDER, RECENTLY APPOINTED EXAMINER IN STATE BUREAU.
Superintendent at Youngstown considers His Departure Calamity to School's Best Interests.
It is recognized by the host of friends in Licking county of Frank P. Householder, who was for a long time a school examiner and one of the prominent educators of the county, that no more capable man could have been selected by State Auditor Donahue for a position as one of the examiners in the state bureau of accounting.

Mr. Householder is now principal of the Parmelee school in Youngstown, and his worth to the schools of that city is most highly appreciated, as is evidenced by an article appearing in the Youngstown Vindicator, which says:
"Announcement of the appointment of Frank P. Householder, principal of Parmelee school, to a position in the state accounting bureau, is received with expressions of sincere regret by local school officials. The prospect of losing the services of the capable schoolman is recognized as highly detrimental to the best interests of the local schools."
"In discussing the question with N. H. Chaney, that official expressed concern over the departure of Principal Householder. 'He is one of the very best instructors that we have,' declared Dr. Chaney. 'He organizes and leads his work with such capable hand and at the same time in such a happy way that the teachers under his direction are always glad to give their best endeavors. He came to Youngstown three years ago from a point near Newark and has ever since done fine work. I feel like getting out an injunction against the departure of Mr. Householder.' Locally concluded the superintendent."

"It was apparent from the attitude of the head of the local schools that if any argument can be used to keep Mr. Householder in Youngstown it will be offered."
PROTECTING HER.
"You ate all of your own cake and Mabel's, too, Tommie?" said the mother.
"Yes m," replied Tommie.
"You'll be sick, child."
"Well, mother, you see if anybody was going to be sick I didn't want it to be Mabel."—Yonkers Statesman.

declared Dr. Chaney. He came to Youngstown three years ago from a point near Newark and has ever since done fine work. I feel like getting out an injunction against the departure of Mr. Householder." Benefited Many Who Had Tuberculosis

Those who suffer from Consumption are generally troubled with night sweats, fever, loss of strength and little or no appetite. Fresh air, good food, and the proper care of the body are essential to a recovery, but in many cases something else is needed. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine which has been most successful in stopping night sweats, reducing fever and promoting appetite, and many who have used it declare it saved their lives. Investigate what it did in this case:
"Forty-four years ago I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse; I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my case Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital. They also pronounced the disease Consumption, which was proven later by an examination of sputum. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy, fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been completely cured for ten years. I strongly recommend it."
(MRS.) MARY WASSON, Care of Green, 1722 S. 17th St., Phila., Pa. Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. BOSS COX MUST STAND TRIAL FOR PERJURY

Columbus, Feb. 11.—As a result of a ruling of the supreme court today George B. Cox, former Cincinnati political boss, must stand trial on a charge of perjury. The exception of Henry T. Hunt, former prosecutor and now mayor of Cincinnati to the ruling of Judge Dixon, that the indictment was bad and that Cox violated his constitutional right by being compelled to testify against himself was sustained. The case is the outgrowth of efforts to collect interest paid to county officers by city banks for deposits of county funds unlawfully made. Cox testified that he knew nothing of these deposits but evidence was introduced to show that he received $251,000 of such interest money.

Unpleasant Sauce for Home Cookery

SOME times I get downright provoked at Jane," said Dolly. "What has Jane done now?" asked Mabel, calmly sewing. "It's the same old story; but once in a while it exasperates me more than usual. I was there for a week-end, you know."

"Yes."

"Jane has a lovely home, one must admit that. Her parlor we would call it, but she calls it drawing-room,—is in gold and white, and her dining room in blue and white, and her bedrooms are exquisite; and she has the most beautiful rugs and silver and cut glass, and such things. But the way she worries over those things really wears me out. I come away exhausted, for I catch the strain."

"I'd rather live in a log cabin, than live that way, wouldn't you?"

"Yes. She's always at the children about making finger marks on her white paint. And while she's talking to you, she'll suddenly jump up and say, 'I declare you can't get a maid that'll half dust.' And then she'll wipe some imaginary dust from a picture. And if I move around in my chair much, especially her drawing-room ones, I know she is thinking I'm wearing out the silk upholstery. She growls all the time because the maid shakes some of her oriental rugs too hard. And one day at luncheon, she did nothing but groan and complain how tired she was, because she had had to wash all the cut glass, for she wouldn't trust anybody else to do it."

"She serves up her housekeeping with the sauce of self-sacrifice, doesn't she?"

"Yes, and it certainly is not a sauce piquante. It detracts rather than lends relish."

Mabel nodded, "I have a friend like that. I always feel like a criminal when I am eating her jelly, and she tells me how hard she worked and what a hot day it was when she made it."

"That's my feeling when I visit Jane," said Dolly. "It seems I oughtn't to come and make her so much work."

"She don't mean it that way. She'd be awfully disappointed if you didn't come, and she had nobody to tell how hard she worked. She really takes a lot of satisfaction in keeping things so shining, even if she does do a lot of groaning about it."

"It would be nicer for all concerned if she didn't groan," said Dolly. "Just imagine living in that atmosphere all the time! I shouldn't think her husband and children would enjoy their home, even if it is so beautiful."

"No, I don't approve of it," said Mabel. "Housekeeping is no easy job. But I think if we undertake it, we ought to buckle down to it and put it through without walls and lamentations. The sauce of sacrifice is not the most appetizing relish for home cookery."

ELY'S CREAM BALM OPENS CLOGGED NOSTRILS AND HEAD--CATARRH GOES

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely, Nasty Discharge Stops, Head Colds and Dull Headache Vanish.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear, by morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heats the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dripping into the throat and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in Ely's Cream Balm—and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. Hall's Drug Store, 10 North Side Square.

AFTER THE BRICK CONTRACT FOR THE MASONIC TEMPLE

A number of representatives of brick manufacturers over the state met in Newark on Monday evening with the Masonic Temple Company committee at the Masonic Club rooms in West Main street.

Among the companies represented were the Coshocton Brick Company, the Hanover Brick Company, the Hydraulic Press Brick Company of Cleveland, the Farris Company of St. Albans, the Haverd Company of Massillon, the Standard Brick Company, the Somerset Brick Company, and the Belden Brick Company of Canton.

The committee was unable to arrive at a decision and the representatives of the various companies will lay off the bricks in small lots to give the committee a better idea of the completed result in building. The contract for the temple will probably be let before the month is out.

terrible blizzard, must have missed one of its supply depots, which are generally marked by an upturned sledge, with a flag lashed to it.

The fact that Captain Amundsen reached his base from the pole in 38 days, while the Scott party had been traveling more than two months when disaster overtook them, is believed to show that Scott must either have met some misfortune, possible in a crevasse, or encountered a succession of blizzards.

The fact that Petty Officer Evans died from concussion of the brain as early as February 17 seems to indicate some such accident, possibly involving the loss of a portion of the equipment.

Captain Oates died on March 17, which clearly shows that the party was in dire straits and must have undergone terrible sufferings during the remaining 12 days.

No news has been received as to the fate of Captain Scott and his companions was discovered, but it is assumed that a rescue party was dispatched from the base.

A message of sympathy to the Geographical Society from the king was read, in which his majesty said: "I am deeply grieved to hear the very bad news you give me of the loss of Captain Scott and four of his party last week. We were hoping shortly to welcome them home on their return from their great and arduous undertaking. I heartily sympathize with the Royal Geographical Society in the loss to science and discover through the death of these gallant explorers."

The message from the king was in reply to a notification of the tidings from the antarctic, transmitted to his majesty by Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, president of the society.

The member present of the meeting was a member of the members of the society, and he had received a message from the king. After a long and detailed review of the details of the expedition and the loss of the party, the king said: "I am deeply grieved to hear the very bad news you give me of the loss of Captain Scott and four of his party last week. We were hoping shortly to welcome them home on their return from their great and arduous undertaking. I heartily sympathize with the Royal Geographical Society in the loss to science and discover through the death of these gallant explorers."

QUALITY LIGHT

Have you ever observed the difference between a dark, murky day and a bright "sunshiny" one when all nature seems "a-smiling"? Have you noticed the difference between your disposition, capacity, etc., on a blue Monday and then on a beautiful balmy Thursday? In one case everything goes wrong—in the other, everything is "just right," and everybody feels fine.

That is exactly the difference between good light and poor light—the difference between Mazda light and any other light. Your home, store or factory will be a different place if you have Mazdas. This life is too short to go through without the good things that you can have at no greater expense than the poor ones you are getting. The old idea that electric light is expensive has been exploded—and relegated. You can have plenty of it and your pocketbook won't know the difference.
